Grand Harbor POA Website Briefing

To all Grand Harbor Community Members,

The new Grand Harbor member website launches tomorrow! Before then, we'd like to provide an outline of the site and its features, as well as forthcoming emails which will provide further information and instructions. Additionally, the original announcement email is attached for those who may not have seen it.

The web address will not change, so you will still access it via ghcommunities.net once it's live and you've followed the account setup instructions.

Our new site is intended to provide an easy-to-use, modern home for community discussion, events, and communication, as well as providing connecting members to local resources and events.

Appended to this email is a breakdown of the main site areas and features. Please take a look and see which areas interest you and, if applicable, what new content you'd like to see.

As noted in the prior email, we have a new, single point-of-contact address for the site - support@ghcommunities.net. Please bookmark it and send an email with your issues, comments, and recommendations. Thank you!

Account Setup & Access

If you are receiving this email directly, then your account is already established. You will receive a setup email tomorrow with your username (this email address) and a link to set your password. This does not have to be completed tomorrow - the email and link will be good indefinitely. Once you've set your password, you can login and use the site. Full detail & instructions will be provided in the email.

Accessing the Site

Once you've followed the instructions in the account setup email, you can connect to the site by going to ghcommunities.net in your desktop or mobile browser. Bookmarks to ghcommunities.net (not necessarily sub-pages, such as events), will automatically send you to the new site.

Mobile Access

There are two options for phones & tablets, both of which compliment each other and can be used in parallel. Details & instructions will be sent in a separate, mobile-specific email.

We Need You!

The site is intended to promote community connections, foster events & activities, and be a home for information useful to our members. To achieve this, we need you! Success of our online community depends on your participation and input. So, please peruse the site and provide your discussion topics, recommend events, and partake in activity planning.

There are forms in each participatory section where you can request new topics, groups, and events. And, if you'd like to see a section on the site that isn't there, just fill out the 'Contact Us' form or email
